

JUL 20 1922 ✓

©CIL 18069 ✓

THE TRUTH JUGGLER.

by Hal E. Roach.

Lovey and Dovey are about to pay mother-in-law a visit but being only a week-end trip the little ford is loaded to the gunwale with suit cases, trunks and valises and when hubby is about to step on the gas all plans are upset by the unexpected appearance of mother-in-law herself. But sorrow was turned to joy for when mother-in-law enters the house she discovers that she has forgotten to leave father's expense money and the badge that he won as commander of the Exalted Liars of America. So daughter accompanied by hubby goes to the train and hubby having been admonished by mother-in-law to hurry home promptly disregarded the maternal advice and gets all saturated with the joy of living. The hours roll by until the indicator shows that it is nearly time for the milkman to arrive. The daughter meanwhile, has been to town and returned and the two women, mother and daughter, await the coming of the truant husband. He arrives shakily and unsteady and is promptly called to explain his conduct which he does in such a manner that mother promptly pins on him the medal which belonged to father.

WE leave it to your judgment what he told her and the comedy humorously portrays it.

THE END.

This document is from the Library of Congress
“Motion Picture Copyright Descriptions Collection, 1912-1977”

Collections Summary:

The Motion Picture Copyright Descriptions Collection, Class L and Class M, consists of forms, abstracts, plot summaries, dialogue and continuity scripts, press kits, publicity and other material, submitted for the purpose of enabling descriptive cataloging for motion picture photoplays registered with the United States Copyright Office under Class L and Class M from 1912-1977.

Class L Finding Aid:

<https://hdl.loc.gov/loc.mbrsmi/eadmbrsmi.mi020004>

Class M Finding Aid:

<https://hdl.loc.gov/loc.mbrsmi/eadmbrsmi.mi021002>

National Audio-Visual Conservation Center
The Library of Congress